In March of last year 1884 I contracted blood poison, and being in Savannah, Ga., at the time, I went into the hospital there for treatment. I suffered very much from rheumatism at the same time. I did not get well under the treatment there, nor was I cured by any of the usual means. I have now taken seven bottles of Swift's Specific and am sound and well. It drove the poison out through the boils on the skin.

ANNUAL REPORTS.

The Secretary of the Interior on the Indian Question.

A NUMBER OF RECOMMENDATIONS

Treasurer Jordan Gives the Condition of the Nation's Finances, and Recommends the Suspension of Silver Coinage.

WASHINGTON, Dec 6.—The annual report of the secretary of the interior reviews, at great length, the relations of the Indian tribes to the government and settlers residing near their reservations, [illegible] the outbreaks of the year and the causes of them are considered.

The recommendation of the commissioner of Indian affairs that the lawless [illegible] of the [illegible] Chiricahuas should be transported to an island in the Pacific ocean as a penal colony to earn their own living by fishing, stock raising, etc., or sent to the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, is endorsed. It recommends that the Southern Utes be located in Indian territory, and that the Flatheads of Oregon be settled on homesteads and given farm implements and other assistance.

LEASES TO CATTLEMEN

The subject of the leasing of land by Indians to cattle companies is taken up, and after showing the passive consent of the late secretary to such leases, and the evil that has resulted from the practice, the secretary says: "From all the facts [illegible] on the subject I am convinced that assistance was [illegible] the respective Indian agents in the making of these alleged leases was directed more to the interest of the cattlemen than of the Indians placed under their care and supervision. While many of the Indians [illegible] the leasing of their lands for grazing purposes, others were opposed and protested against such use and occupation of their reservations and refused to participate in the [illegible] of the alleged leases, or to accept any share of the money received therefor. Such [illegible], however, seems to have been brought to bear upon a majority of the respective tribes to induce them to enter into the arrangements made. In my judgment, not the least among such practices were the [illegible] and persuasion of the respective Indian agents, or [illegible] at least, and in many instances I fear they have shared in the profits of these speculative transactions."

[illegible]

After speaking of the encroachments of [illegible] and [illegible] rights the secretary says: "It is evident that the Indian race has reached a crisis in its history. The Indians can no longer exist in this country in a savage or semi-civilized state, nor can they longer [illegible] before the advancing civilization. It has already surrounded him. Movements of the population westward and northward and southward have gone on with unprecedented rapidity until every reservation is closed in and pressed upon by cowboys, soldiers, miners, ranchmen and traders. The practice of moving the Indians to more distant reservations can be continued no longer. He must make his final stand for existence where he is now. Unless he can adapt himself to the necessities of [illegible] conditions and partake of this [illegible] civilization, his extinction will be sure and swift. The need of a permanent scheme to [illegible] management to meet this emergency is pressing [illegible] the government with imperious [illegible] the Indian race is [illegible] the [illegible] or security of this great [illegible]. Most of the reservations [illegible] powerful communities [illegible] upon the frontier and [illegible] in the [illegible] military [illegible] Indian [illegible] [illegible] as the [illegible] the Indian [illegible] the Indian problem [illegible] by simply withdrawing all government support and protection [illegible] conferring upon them the rights of American citizenship. Those who would not pass away would be scattered and absorbed into American society. After incorporating into our body politic 4,000,000 of blacks in a state of slavery and investing them with citizenship and its franchises, we need not strain at the gnat of 260,000 Indians. It would merely be an additional morsel, and a very small one. Such a course, however, would be more cruel and disastrous to the Indian in his helpless condition, to which the extension of settlements will soon reduce him, than a war of extermination."

A RECOMMENDATION

Continuing, the secretary says: "I recommend that a portion of every reservation be divided up into several tracts suitable sizes for farms, to be allotted to individual Indians as his own and separate estate, [illegible] should be made against his power [illegible] a time limit of selling or mortgaging the same or even leasing it to any but Indians living within the same reservation. Without legislation of this kind all efforts to make the Indian support himself by his own labor will prove fruitless and unavailing. However [illegible] his natural aversion to labor there must in the incentive given alone by a sure guarantee that the fruits of his labor should be enjoyed in security. No man will clear farm lands, inclose fields and cultivate them, and rear houses and barns, when at any moment he may be removed and carried off against his will to some distant and unknown region. The ownership of land in freehold alone tends to inspire individual independence, pride of character, personal industry and the development of the domestic virtues. Provision should be made that the Indian accepting a patent for his land shall thereby not forfeit any of his rights as a member of his tribe nor the protection and benefit which the laws of the United States extend to Indians generally.

"I favor the policy recommended by my predecessor in this office, Secretary Kirkwood, of reducing to a proper size the existing reservations when entirely out of proportion to the number of Indians thereon, with the consent of the Indians, and upon just and fair terms, and secondly, of [illegible] by patent the titles to the so diminished reservations as fully under the protection of the courts as are the titles of all others of our people to their lands. The surplus portion not allotted should be sold to white, and the proceeds invested for the benefit of the Indians. The execution of it should be cautious and tentative.

A GRADUAL PROCESS

"My recommendation that only a portion of each reservation be divided into separate tracts is stated below, [illegible] upon the conviction that we must hold the Indians to hold their lands in severalty, [illegible] their right of [illegible] under this [illegible] system into a [illegible] by a gradual process, and not by the sudden abolition of a system which is with them religion as well as a law of property. Those who urge the speedy breaking up of tribal relations, the obliteration of the reservation system and the localization of individuals upon separate allotments of land as a general policy overlook the important fact that the Indian race is not a homogeneous race. It consists of numerous widely separate tribes, speaking different languages, and varying greatly in customs, habits and conditions [illegible] enlightened [illegible] of the [illegible] wild [illegible] bands who [illegible] by plunder the scanty subsistence they derive from the chase and government rations. Any [illegible] to the advancement of [illegible] would be disastrous and destructive [illegible] must be [illegible] circumstances and condition require.

"The secretary recommends the appointment of a commission of not more than six men of intelligence and experience, [illegible] such ability as to be able to comprehend the course of [illegible] and methods of management best adapted to insure the speedy progress of the several tribes and bands, to visit each of the reservations and investigate and report the condition [illegible] circumstances and the needs of the Indians residing thereon.

TO DISCOURAGE 'SQUAW MEN.'

The secretary recommends in order to destroy the evil influence of 'squaw men' the passage of a law providing that whenever an Indian woman shall marry a citizen of the United States she shall be deemed a citizen, and that all children born of such marriage shall be deemed citizens. Under the provisions of this law no Indian woman would marry such a man, with the certainty of losing her membership with her tribe and her right to remain on the reservation.

The condition of the Indian schools the report says is gratifying.

The Winnebago and Crow Creek reservation troubles are reviewed, and it is announced that the president's order withdrawing those lands from settlement has been almost universally obeyed. The exceptions, if any exist, are cases in which removal would cause suffering.

The story of the Oklahoma invasions is retold and it is stated that these unlawful movements have rendered it unwise at present to open negotiations with the Indians owning the title to these lands for the purpose of opening them to settlement.

TREASURER JORDAN'S REPORT.

He Recommends that the Coinage of Silver Dollars be Suspended.

WASHINGTON, Dec 6.—The annual report of United States Treasurer Jordan shows that the net revenue of the government during the last fiscal year was $323,690,706, or $24,829,163 less than that of the preceding year, while the expenditure was $260,[illegible] or $16,100,691 greater than that of the preceding year. The surplus available for reduction of the public debt at the close of the fiscal year was $[illegible] less than was available on the first of July 1884.

Assets according to the new form of statement September 30, 1885, were $[illegible] or an increase of $[illegible] over 1884. Liabilities were $[illegible], an increase of $10,215,591 over 1884, and the balance $184,326,478, an increase of $44,301,416 over 1884. During the same period there has been an increase of $33,464,[illegible] in gold assets, of $22,095,006 in silver assets, $6,770,423 in legal tender assets, and of $171,[illegible] in national bank assets and national bank deposits.

Bullion fund on deposit in the mints was, on the 30th of June this year, $148,504,629, as against $141,048,[illegible] on June 30, 1884.

NEW ISSUES

The issue of United States notes during the fiscal year in place of such as were returned in a worn and mutilated condition amounted to $8,[illegible]. Silver certificates to the amount of $40,000,000 were issued, and $20,[illegible],045 were redeemed during the year. Gold certificates [illegible] issues amounting to $[illegible] were redeemed. Of the new issue $6[illegible],000 were issued and $21,017,400 redeemed.

Coupons from United States bonds to the amount of $[illegible] were received from the several assistant treasurers, by whom they were paid and examined in this office. Called bonds, [illegible] amounting to $45,[illegible],600, were redeemed, of which amount $[illegible] was for the sinking fund. Interest amounting to $[illegible] on registered bonds of the United States [illegible] those issued to the Pacific railroad companies, was paid. National banks withdrew $[illegible] of bonds held to secure their circulating notes and $31,300,700 of bonds were deposited for that purpose, a net decrease of $2,[illegible],650.

Deficits occurring during the fiscal year making the amounts involved unavailable to the treasury were one of $[illegible] in the office of the assistant treasurer at New Orleans and one of $11,857.17 in the assay office at Boise City, Idaho. [illegible] the following items: Deduction of amount of [illegible] at branch mint at San Francisco $[illegible], a reduction of amount involved in the failure of the Venango National Bank of Franklin, Pa., of $127,511.60, and adjustment of two deficits in the former United States depository at Baltimore, amounting to $[illegible], and $[illegible] respectively, making a total decrease of $[illegible],38.68 and a net increase in the unavailable [illegible] of $10,[illegible].

NATIONAL BANK CIRCULATION

National banks paid into the treasury on account of the semi-annual duty on their circulation [illegible] sum of $[illegible],81, which was $[illegible] less than was paid on that account the preceding year. Circulating notes of national banks amounting to $[illegible] were received for redemption during the year. This amount included notes of national banks that [illegible] into liquidation, or reducing circulation, of which $[illegible] were [illegible] during the year.

Notice is given of the suspension of the issuance of one and two dollar notes, and the economy [illegible] thereby, the saving for one quarter being the cost of printing 600,000 notes and the paper used in their manufacture. At this rate a reduction in the [illegible] is indicated about $28,000,000 in the current year.

The treasurer recommends the establishment of a issue department in order to obtain greater security than now prevails in the [illegible] of legal tender notes and other securities of the government.

The report states also that there have been [illegible] of the [illegible] by law [illegible] of [illegible] returned.

MORE [illegible] WANTED

The treasurer [illegible] that he should have authority to make frequent examinations of the sub-treasuries and [illegible] to know that the funds with which he is charged are held as represented, and to hold officers to a more strict accountability than has heretofore prevailed. He recommends an appropriation sufficient to cover the expense of such examinations.

He [illegible] favors a scheme for reorganization of the sub-treasuries of the United States, officers of which have [illegible] their duties and responsibilities [illegible] increased through the issue of gold, silver and legal tender certificates and in other ways.

All [illegible] large amounts of funds to the credit of disbursing officers of the [illegible]. It is believed that advances [illegible] in excess of their current requirements. [illegible] the amount [illegible] and has frequently exceeded $[illegible]. It is recommended that payments [illegible] restricted to sums needed [illegible] a very large part of those [illegible] pension agents. It is recommended that a change be made in the mode of [illegible] pension [illegible] these payments made [illegible] in checks [illegible] public debt is now paid.

AGAINST SILVER.

The treasurer recommends that the practice of issuing legal tender, gold and silver certificates be discontinued as a [illegible] and dangerous through the accumulation of immense sums now in the treasury. Silver certificates, especially, [illegible] found that it has proved to be a positive hindrance to the more extended circulation of the silver dollar. The latter he also considers too expensive a currency for daily use as owing to [illegible] charges paid by the government in putting these coins into circulation, and further charges paid by the people to return them to the treasury [illegible] can be used the coins cause a charge to [illegible] community. It is apparent, he says, that the execution of the silver coinage law is gradually converting the funds of the treasury into standard dollars. Every effort has been made to give an extended circulation to these coins, but without the success which the large expenditures incurred would warrant. Such success as has been obtained has not been very great [illegible] the government this [illegible] continuing the issue. The circulation of these coins is [illegible] the coins finding their way back immediately to the sub-treasuries [illegible] cost to the [illegible] holders more for transportation than the original issue cost the government, as the sub-treasuries become overloaded with returned [illegible] dollars, the government is obliged to transport them at heavy cost to the nearest place in which vault room can be [illegible]. He [illegible] that the treasury be [illegible] to [illegible] economic [illegible] employed in order to distribute them and [illegible].

FRACTIONAL COIN

The treasurer states that the amount of fractional coin held in the treasury is $31,[illegible] and recommends the repeal of the redemption law as to these and minor coins as tending to prevent their over issue. He further gives a statement of the abrasion upon coin now in use and an estimate as to what it would cost to replace them with other subsidiary coin of equal or greater value. He recommends the issue of new coins of greater weight and greater beauty, throwing open designs for the new issue to competition. In order to save the expense of coining and distributing minor coins when a sufficient supply is already in the treasury, it is recommended that coinage be suspended and future demands be supplied from treasury offices at the cost of the applicant, as this is the only practicable way in which to prevent a constantly recurring redundancy.

The treasurer further recommends that the entire revenue derived from the postoffice department go through the treasury and be spent under [illegible] supervision.

THE SALT LAKE SCARE.

The Presence of Troops Expected to Remove all Probability of Trouble.

SALT LAKE, Dec 6.—All is quiet here and there is no probability of trouble. Precautions for the preservation of life and property are ample. The action of Gov. Murray and Gen. McCook in [illegible] the threatening situation here and getting authority to [illegible] troops in the city, and the ordering of reinforcements here have removed all apprehensions for the present.

McMurrin, supposed to have been fatally shot by Deputy Marshal Collin, is recovering.

[illegible]

WASHINGTON, Dec 6.—The war department has recently received such reports from its [illegible] as [illegible] regarding the very unsettled [illegible] affairs in Utah territory, growing out of the enforcement of the laws against polygamy, as to cause some [illegible] but no alarm. The recent shooting of a Mormon by the United States marshal created a great deal of excitement among Mormons, and some apprehension was felt at Salt Lake that there would be an uprising among them. A battery of artillery was recently ordered from Omaha to Fort Douglas, which is situated a few miles from Salt Lake City. This movement, however, was not [illegible] on account of any fear of Mormon rebellion, but had been in contemplation for some time. The force now at Fort Douglas consists of a full regiment of infantry and a battery of artillery, and is under command of Gen. McCook. In the event of an outbreak, all the troops in the department of the Platte, consisting of about 3,000 men, could be concentrated at Fort Douglas in a very few hours. No serious trouble is, however, apprehended by any army officials.

NO NEW DEPARTURE

OMAHA, Dec. 6.—There has been no new departure of troops from Fort Omaha since yesterday [illegible] battery D was dispatched on a special train. Gen. Howard refused to state the destination of the [illegible], but it is generally conceded that they are bound for Salt Lake. The entire garrison is held in readiness for orders to march. The Ninth cavalry, colored, stationed at Fort Robinson, is also ready to move at a moment's notice.

TROOPS EN ROUTE

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec 6.—Batteries B and G, Fifth United States artillery, passed through here this evening en route to Salt Lake City. Troops at Forts Russell, Sidney, Steele and Washakie are under marching orders to be ready to move at a moment's notice. Many rumors are afloat regarding an uprising of Mormons, but at 8:30 P. M. your correspondent has information that everything is quiet in and around Salt Lake City.

A Forecast of the Coming Week in Congress.

THE DELEGATION FROM OREGON.

The Ambition of a San Francisco Man—Rosecrans' Article on Grant—Disastrous Prairie Fires in Kansas—Etc.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The president's message will not be sent to congress until Tuesday. The senate is expected to adjourn to-morrow out of respect to the memory of the late vice president immediately after the swearing in of its members and the election of its president pro tempore. The committees of the senate were all organized at a special session last March and under the rules of the body they continue throughout congress, unless changed by order of the senate.

It is probable that the reading of the message will consume the greater part of Tuesday's session, though possibly an opportunity may be afforded for the introduction of bills.

The presidential succession and electoral count bills may be reported back from the committee to which they will be referred in time for action before the end of the week, and a resolution embodying a code of joint rules which the senate adopted two years ago may possibly be so brought to a point of action. But little or no other legislative work is expected during the week or in fact before the holiday recess.

Presidential appointments made during the summer recess are required by law to be sent to the senate for confirmation within twenty days of the assembling of congress, and consideration of these will probably consume the larger part of the time of the senate during the early weeks of the session.

Immediately after the assemblage of the house to-morrow the clerk of the last house will call the roll, and upon a quorum of members answering, the [illegible] the work of organization will be proceeded with. It is probable that immediately upon completion of its organization the house will adjourn as a mark of respect to the memory of Vice President Hendricks.

[illegible] REPRESENTATIVES

WASHINGTON, Dec 6.—An effort is being made to [illegible] a place on the committee on commerce for Congressman Hermann of Oregon. It is the wish of members from the Pacific coast to have one of their number on that committee, and opinion [illegible] in favor of Hermann, but there is a desire [illegible] up the committee [illegible] of the [illegible] it is [illegible] to [illegible] the work of some of the committees [illegible] the speaker can intelligently make up the committee.

Senator Dolph has been carefully canvassing the prospects of securing a large appropriation for the improvement of the mouth of the Columbia river. He states that the outlook is very favorable. The engineer [illegible] reported that the present plan of improving the mouth of the Columbia has been successful so far, and in this report and from the general feeling in the senate Dolph believes that an adequate sum will be appropriated for either [illegible] or carrying on a large part of the work.

SOCIAL NEWS AND GOSSIP

WASHINGTON, Dec [illegible]—Mrs. Senator Dolph will have charge of a table at the [illegible] hospital bazar to be held on the 15th and 16th inst. She will be assisted by a number of young ladies, among whom will be her daughter, and Miss [illegible]. Miss Dolph will be one of the debutantes this winter in society.

Mrs. Fair of California and her five daughters, who are now at Warrenton, Va., will soon move into her house in Massachusetts avenue.

Miss [illegible] of California will spend the winter at "Highland place" in this city.

Mrs. and Miss [illegible] of San Francisco were entertained by Miss [illegible] at tea yesterday afternoon at [illegible] residence on Jefferson place.

[illegible] PRESIDENTIAL SUCCESSION [illegible]

WASHINGTON, Dec [illegible].—A telegraphic error was made yesterday in the transmission of a dispatch briefly explaining the provisions of the presidential succession bill, which the republican senatorial caucus decided to reintroduce and press to passage. The measure makes no provision for succession to the vice presidency as the dispatch was made to indicate, but confers the succession to the presidency, in case of a vacancy in the offices of both the president and vice president, upon the secretary of state. If that office is vacant, then upon the secretary of the treasury, the succession passing to other members of the cabinet in every case of vacancy.

A SOURCE OF DELAY

WASHINGTON, Dec [illegible].—The re-election of Mr. Carlisle to the speakership was a foregone conclusion, and he would doubtless have made considerable progress before this time with the work of forming the committees of the house had it not been for agitation of the question of changing the rules, which question involves numerous propositions to abolish old committees, create new ones, increase the membership of some and in important respects change the functions of others.

JUDGE HAGER'S AMBITION.

He Wanted the Austrian Mission, and is not Satisfied with the San Francisco Collectorship.

WASHINGTON, Dec 6.—Judge Hager's political ambition has at last cake[illegible] the regents of the University of California last spring, commissioned by the regents of the state university to select a president for that institution. That work in itself was simple enough and easily and quickly dispatched, but Judge Hager lingered [illegible]. He dined at the house of Secretary Bayard, and saw President Cleveland, and evidently made a good impression wherever he went.

Judge Hager nursed his ambition in silence and remained within easy reach of Washington, ostensibly hunting for a pedagogue. At last the president appointed him collector of the port of San Francisco. Although this was an unwelcome and unexpected honor he could not refuse to accept it, since the president had expressed a desire that he should do so. It was a disappointment to Judge Hager, but it was a still greater disappointment to Mr. Hager [illegible] her husband's real desires.

HE MAY YET SUCCEED

Hager then sat down and wrote to Governor Price of New Jersey of his disappointment. Price is an old-time friend of Judge Hager, and the two have frequently worked in the political caucuses together. Judge Hager wrote to Price that he was being consumed with a desire to be appointed minister to Austria. Price looked the ground over, and replied that the matter would have been simple enough, and readily accomplished, if Judge Hager had only given words to his wish while he was in Washington. Governor Price answered that he would move heaven and earth and try to move Cleveland to accomplish it, and that is what Governor Price is in Washington for at present. The New Jersey delegation is for Hager, and a host of his California friends are for him.

It is said that Judge Hager may yet be gratified with the office he came to Washington after. It is to ask for [illegible] many time with [illegible] spoken. [illegible] opened [illegible] collectorship of the [illegible] San Francisco again [illegible] thought that as soon [illegible] may be selected for collector of the port and an entire change be made at once. [illegible] probably be selected for collector [illegible] lieutenant-governor John A. Johnson.

ROSECRANS'S ARTICLE ON GRANT

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The Army and Navy Journal says of Gen. Rosecrans' article in this month's North American Review: "It is entitled The Mistakes of Grant. It is acrimonious in spirit, referring in one place to a statement by Gen. Grant as a bold untruth. Rosecrans charges Gen. Grant with unifying dislike of Gen. Thomas, with assisting in misstating facts to gratify the dislikes of others and to glorify himself, writing in a style which abounds in inaccurate, misleading [illegible] statements. Concluding, he says—'The principles and habits of a long life with me have been against the obtrusion of personal views upon public attention, but truth and justice require that upon historical events, especially when I am cognizant, I should not in silence permit insatiable, unscrupulous egotism under the shadow of a great name to masquerade as the muse of history.'"

STEAMERS OVERDUE

DETROIT, Dec. 6.—The steamers Saginaw and Oconto are overdue, and considerable anxiety is felt for their safety. They were last heard from Friday, and are thought to have been out in the heavy gale of the last two days. The Oconto left Oscoda Friday at 4 P. M., and had several passengers and a load of freight. Her crew comprised twenty men. The Saginaw left Cleveland about the same time and has not yet been reported. She carried about the same crew as the Oconto.

CLEARING HOUSE RETURNS.

BOSTON, Dec 6.—Leading clearing houses of the United States report that total gross bank exchanges for the week ending December 5th were $1,0[illegible],187,38, an increase of 24 per cent compared with the corresponding week last year.

THE FIRE RECORD.

DISASTROUS PRAIRIE FIRES.

TOPEKA, Ks., Dec 6.—A special from Burton, Ks., says that during a high wind Friday a prairie fire broke out seven miles north of that place, which swept over an area of about thirty miles, destroying 1300 stacks of hay and grain, and numbers of sheep, hog and cattle sheds. It is not stated how far east the fire extended.

Further and more definite reports of prairie fires in Silver Lake township, this county, Friday, bring advices of terrible loss to property, but the amount cannot be estimated. On Edwards' ranch 3800 tons of hay was burned. Johnson & Williams lost 600 tons of hay, besides fences, sheds and crops. Patrick McHenry was entirely burned out, losing everything but the clothing on his family. In Edward county a man was fatally burned, and John Leeper and John Berry are not expected to live. The fire is supposed to have originated on the Pottawattomie Indian reserve. It will be several days before the full loss can be given.

STEAMER BURNED.

CAIRO, Dec. 6.—The Anchor line steamer City of Baton Rouge was burned to the water's edge this morning at New Madrid. Fire was discovered in the hold, and soon enveloped the whole boat. She had about twenty passengers, including several ladies, who escaped safely but lost everything. She had about 1800 tons in her cargo. She was built at Jeffersonville for the Anchor line, and made her first trip in June 1881. She is a total loss.

LARGE FIRES AT CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—The Selpp block on Franklin street, burned to-night. The contents and building are a total loss. The loss is $300,000; insurance $250,000.

Another large fire broke out about midnight in Crilley & Sexton's stove foundry, and is now burning fiercely. The loss will be heavy.

ACCIDENTS.

A FATAL COLLISION.

DENVER, Dec 6.—Durango special to the Republican: Several men coming down Amargo canyon on the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, this afternoon on a push car, in turning a sharp curve, they collided with a freight going up, instantly killing J. Bethune, road foreman, on the car, and seriously wounding two others, who it is reported will die. Mr. Hi[illegible], contractor on the Colorado state capitol building, was one of the number, but escaped uninjured.

ANOTHER ELECTION PROBABLE.

Austria Wants Peace in the Balkans—Particulars of the Great Storm at Aspinwall—List of the Vessels Lost.

NEW YORK, Dec 6.—A cable special from Dublin says Callan is extremely bitter against Parnell for causing his defeat. In a speech at Dundalk on Thursday he said, in Parnell's presence: "He (Parnell) said last Sunday that I was truculent and unmanageable. Now I brand that statement, in the face of Parnell, as a deliberate malignant lie." Callan here turned round and shook his hand at Parnell. "I brand him as a slanderer and a coward, and his one who has malignantly vilified me. My friends have been spoken of by Parnell as a hired gang of ruffians, as the lowest of the low. Well, I had no money to buy them with, for, although I entered the party a rich man, comparatively speaking, I am now a poor man. Parnell entered parliament with his estates encumbered. He has now a large estate and a balance at his bankers, and it would ill become him to turn on me in my poverty." It was expected that Parnell would say something, but he left quietly.

THE VOTE IN IRELAND

LONDON, Dec 6.—The total Parnell vote cast in Ireland is 221,881, and the loyalist vote, including tories and liberals, is 121,101. The vote in Ulster was Parnellites 42,638, loyalists, 94,362. Outside of Ulster the vote was Parnellites 179,243, loyalists 26,639. Four conservative candidates were elected without opposition—one for West Down, one for East Down and two for Dublin university. Twenty Parnellites were returned unopposed. In all Ireland seventeen tories and sixty-nine Parnellites have been elected. Mr. O'Connor is elected for Liverpool and Mr. Gray for Dublin, thus giving the Parnellites safe seats in Galway and Carlow. Fourteen of the seventeen Irish districts unpolled are certain to return Parnellite candidates, and these, with Galway and Carlow, will bring the Parnellite total up to 86.

ENGLAND

ANOTHER GENERAL ELECTION PROBABLE.

LONDON, Dec 6.—The chances are still against any liberal majority whatever and equally against any working majority over the tories and Parnellites. The probable net result, therefore, of the present election is a short stormy parliament, speedy dissolution and another general election next year. The liberals, nevertheless, are much delighted by the contrast which the counties offer to the boroughs. The liberal county victories throughout England and Scotland are most striking.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The Daily News still hopes for a liberal majority over the Parnellites and conservatives combined, but believes that Lord Salisbury, refusing to admit defeat, will retain office, and thus practically acknowledge coalition, which virtually he denied.

AUSTRIA WANTS PEACE.

LONDON, Dec 6.—The Standard has a dispatch from Vienna, stating that Herr von Tisza, Hungarian premier, Count Kalnoky, imperial prime minister, and other high officials had a conference there to-day, and that Count von Khevenhuller, Austrian minister to Servia, has started for Nisch, bearing an urgent warning to the Servian government that a resumption of hostilities with Bulgaria will bring dangers which even Austria's good will cannot prevent. The dispatch also says that Prince Alexander has been notified that Austria will intervene if Nisch is captured by Bulgarians.

THE STORM AT ASPINWALL.

A List of the Vessels Lost—Many Persons Perish—The Steamers all Safe.

ASPINWALL, Dec. 6.—On the morning of the 2d instant a heavy swell set in from the northwest, and at 2 P. M. the same day a heavy squall came from the same direction. The weather looked threatening and preparations were made for getting the Pacific Mail steamer Acapulco from her wharf. At 3 P. M. an attempt was made to move a German steamer from pier No. 1, but the captain in trying to east anchor ran the vessel against pier No. 2 and the Royal Mail Steamship company's pier, where the steamer remained in a very dangerous position until 4 P. M., when the captain succeeded in getting her head pointed out and then proceeded to sea.

The French and Spanish steamers left pier No. 2 as soon as the German steamer got clear.

At 4:20 P. M. the swell becoming heavier, the wind increasing in velocity and the weather looking more threatening, the Acapulco left the wharf, over which the sea was breaking in all directions at times.

EXTENT OF THE DAMAGE

The storm continued to rage during the night and next day with unabated fury. Piers No. 1 and 2 remained safe and are apparently little damaged. The Royal Mail steamship company's pier was damaged by the German steamer striking it and by the heavy seas. The foundations of the shore end were badly washed away. The company's new office was also washed away, and a house was carried over on pier 4.

The railway track to the coal berth was washed away for a distance of seventy-five feet. The ballast supporting the track was washed away for about thirty feet.

The Pacific Mail collier Hooper was towed from her berth to escape loss. The Pacific Mail pier still stands, but was badly shaken, and about twenty feet at the north end was washed away. Many of the flooring planks were broken, and the store room and contents were swept away. Two iron piers on the north side were carried off. One hundred cases of kerosene and a number of barrels of alcohol were washed overboard.

Five vessels are within 100 yards of the breakers at Fox river.

THE LOST VESSELS

The following named vessels were lost: Norwegian bark Helden, British brig Evelina, American brig Ortalon (all hands lost), French bark Ocean, American bark Veteran, British bark Douglass Castle, Norwegian bark Karman, British bark Lyndon (all on board supposed to be lost, except the captain's wife and baby), Austrian bark Tigri, Norwegian bark Blanche, Colombian brig Catallant, Colombian brig Stella, American schooners Frank Atwood, Avis and Rio Grande, and sloop Mark Time.

This afternoon the weather is threatening. Scud is flying very fast from the northwest, indicating another "norther." Both the Royal Mail steamers have left their wharf and gone out into the stream. The Acapulco is still alongside of her wharf. The wind has veered from west southwest to northwest and is blowing fresh. The United States steamer Galena has arrived and anchored.

PORTLAND, MONDAY, DEC. 7, 1885.

A CANDID REPORT.

In his annual report the secretary of the navy argues that our policy as a nation does not require a great naval force; but he remarks that we need wisdom in expenditures and a force adequate for the enforcement of our views of right and justice. To secure these results he urges reform in our organization as an indispensable thing. Of said system of organization the secretary attempts an outline, the chief feature of which is separation of the work of direction and deliberation from the work of execution. Under the present system, he says, everything connected with the construction and equipment of our navy is done with too little deliberation, and therefore with too little knowledge. He admits that he is powerless as the department is now organized, to prevent entirely the mismanagement which has so long disgraced it. "Seeing," he remarks, "the ill-advised and inconsiderate manner in which important steps are necessarily taken by the entire present system, I feel certain that a similar record of mismanagement or wasteful expenditure might be made under any secretary." The main trouble arises from the fact that those in authority don't know what to do nor how to do it. They have not the information necessary to enable them to take advantage of the experience gained by other nations, and especially by England, in the science of naval construction.

Therefore it is in construction, including the selection and use of material, that we have most lamentably failed. In consequence "it is questionable whether we have a single vessel afloat at the present time that could be trusted to encounter the ships of any important power—a single vessel that has either the necessary armor for protection, speed for escape, or weapons for defense." The secretary pointedly says that a naval vessel of the present day is a product of science; that, taking the world over, it will be found that each part of her—her armament, her power, her form, and the distribution of her parts or characteristics—each of these features of the completed vessel is absorbing from year to year the exclusive study of a class of scientific men. And, as men of science throughout the world are continually stimulated to new discoveries and inventions, no vessel that can be built can be considered a finality in any particular.

But we have done and are doing nothing to keep pace with the march of improvement in these most important lines of invention and industry. Consequently we have been throwing and still are throwing our money away. It is of little service to a nation to have any navy at all, unless such navy be a fair expression of the highest scientific resources of its day.

The secretary calls attention to the fact that it is to private enterprise that the art of naval warfare is indebted for most of its improvements. But in our own country invention has been discouraged. The Hotchkiss gun now commanding the widest attention, the manufacture of which is becoming an important industry in France, was the product of American invention, which, when ignored and rejected by government agencies here, found elsewhere its field of development. Ericsson, whose name will always be one of the great ones of our fame in history, works now at the age of 82 without encouragement or notice at the great problems of naval warfare, and is receiving more attention and greater encouragement from other governments than from our own. Examples, says the secretary, might easily be multiplied. Since 1868 we have wasted in attempts at construction of war vessels not less than $75,000,000. Had this money been used to stimulate competition among our people in the production of modern ships of war, it is quite fair to assume that the navy yards and agencies at the disposal of the government would have been by this time entirely adequate to its needs. It has been wasted by government agencies upon worthless things.

This report has the merit of extraordinary candor. It is written by a man who sees what the situation is and what ought to be done to meet it.

THE PEOPLE KEPT OUT OF THE LANDS.

Reports of railroad construction—according to the statements of the commissioner of the general land office—show that 17,631 miles of railroad have been constructed under the land grant system. The commissioner criticises with severity the policy that has been pursued of withdrawing from public appropriation lands within the assumed limits of certain roads and retaining such lands in indefinite reservation. In Oregon and Washington the evil effects of such policy have been very keenly felt by the people. The greatest offender in this regard has been the Northern Pacific railroad.

The commissioner declares that he knows of no law authorizing or recognizing the location generally of railroads by divisions or sections. The entire line, including its branches, he says, should be located before the law (as found the supreme court) vests in a railroad company any right to any land. To support this he cites the Cedar Rapids cases, as reported in 110 U. S., page 27. So he argues that the date of filing in the general land office the complete map of the whole line is the date when, under the law as determined by the supreme court, settlement rights within railroad limits cease, and the rights of the companies. It is clear that if this view of the law be rigidly enforced, settlers in many places may hold lands as against railroad companies that claim them.

The commissioner justly remarks that an official withdrawal of lands from appropriation and disposal under the public land laws before the time arrived when the right of appropriation or disposal was conceded by the lawful identification of granted lands was clearly an act of wrong to the government and of injustice to the settlers, while of great and improper advantage to railroad corporations. The difference in time, as the commissioner says, between the accepted and actual definite locations of the lines of road have varied from some months to several years, and sometimes many years, during all of which time settlement rights have been refused, entries canceled or applications rejected, and lawful claimants ousted from their possessions. This is not an overdrawn statement. It has been the basis of a loud complaint on the part of many of our people during a long series of years. In numberless instances the corporations have intimidated the settlers and driven them from lands to which they were justly and lawfully entitled, and it is largely to these acts of injustice to individuals that the slow progress of the Northwest in settlement and industrial development has been due. The commissioner says that the number of settlers having indisputable legal right to the lands occupied by them who have been forced to buy their homes of the railroad companies or suffer eviction because of official declarations of superior railroad right founded upon constructive withdrawals made before any railroad right had actually been acquired, can never be ascertained, but his statement of the fact will meet the eye of thousands who have been victims of this oppressive system, which ought never to have been permitted to exist.

On all sides there are words of praise for Gen. Logan, who, not having been elected to the vice-presidency in the contest before the people, has declined to accept an election from the senate to act as presiding officer. No man, during twenty-five years, has shown better stuff than there is in this same John A. Logan.

Mr. Tilden's letter to Mr. Carlisle on the necessity of fortifying the ports of the country is timely and wise. Our seaboard on both oceans would be practically at the mercy of any great power that might choose to attack us.

Results of the English elections now seem to indicate that no party will have a majority in the house of commons. It is supposed that the liberals, who will be strongest, will fall about ten votes short of a majority.

REGISTRATION MATTERS.

The registry law which is now complete and in force, provides that at the first meeting of county courts in January judges and clerks of the next general election must be appointed; that the judges so appointed shall act as registration boards in the various precincts; that they shall meet, attended by the clerks, on the usual places of voting, in each precinct, at the first Monday in April, and continue in open session for three days, to receive applications for registration from all who are legal voters, or who may be at the next general election. To each of such persons, the judges shall give a certificate. In cases of sickness or unavoidable absence, which must be stated upon oath by the applicant, the chairman of the registration board may issue certificates up to April 25th, but under no circumstance whatever at a later date. It is provided that the judges of election and members of registration boards shall not be, all of them, of the same political party, and it is the expectation that in republican counties such boards will be composed of two republicans and one democrat, and in democratic counties of two democrats and one republican. These are the main features of the law, which, having been talked about for the past ten years, is now practically to be tested.

It is designed to prevent fraudulent voting at Portland, Astoria, The Dalles and other cities where there is a "floating population" ready to vote as early and as often as a consideration is offered. Under the old rule where the judges have to allow all comers to vote who will swear to qualification, it has been impossible in the cities to prevent frauds, for men who will vote for pay will as readily perjure themselves for pay. In the cities, especially in Portland and Astoria, the law will certainly work well, but it does not apply so well to the country precincts. Indeed, there is no need of registration in the country. There is not in Oregon as there is in California and elsewhere an itinerant class of farm-workers. The precinct judges of election are personally acquainted with ninety-nine out of every hundred men who appear at the polls, and it would be impossible to deceive them even if it were attempted. And besides being an unnecessary precaution, registration in the country will involve a serious hardship. The time is short, in April the roads are bad and traveling is difficult everywhere, and in many localities, notably in eastern Oregon the distances between places of residence and places of voting are great. These considerations were taken into account when the bill was considered in the legislature, and well nigh caused its defeat. It was proposed at one time to make the law apply only to cities of 5000 inhabitants and upwards, but this was considered a violation of the constitution, which provides for absolute equality of privilege as to the elective franchise.

Unquestionably the law will cause a large shortage in the vote of the state. In many cases it will be inconvenient and in many impracticable to go to the polling places and register as the law requires, and hundreds, and possibly thousands will default in the matter. The vote of the state is now about 50,000 and we shall be surprised if, at the general election next June, it is not 5000 short. Of course there is no means of judging which party, or if either, will be the loser by a large stay-at-home vote.

THE POLICE COMMISSION.

The new police commission has organized by the selection of Mr. Cardwell as president, and its first executive meeting will be held during the current week. Mr. Cardwell drew the short term, and will hold office one year; Mr. Bourne will hold office two years, and Mr. Simon will hold the full term of three years. The law does not involve any radical change; that is, it dismisses nobody. Chief, captains and policemen hold under the commission precisely as under the council, subject only to dismissal in the discretion of the board. It is not thought that there will be many changes in the police force, and it is quite certain that Mr. Parrish will be retained as chief of the department. The theory upon which the commission was created was a good one. Police affairs were being traded upon in connection with the water scheme, the whisky interest and every other job with "a stomach in it" which came before the council. It was to remove the police department from a position where it was made use of to corrupt city legislation, that its management was made independent. The creation of the commission was an effort in behalf of reform, and the gentlemen who have accepted places upon it have assumed this duty with a full understanding of the circumstances of the special obligations which they imply. It is unfortunate that they are actively connected with politics. This fact involves temptation on the one hand and suspicion on the other. But they have accepted the duty and we hope they will discharge it with a just and single purpose.

It will be remembered that two letters dealing with prohibition in Iowa, and signed by members of the journalistic excursion party, were printed in THE OREGONIAN last June. One declared positively that prohibition was a success and the other quite as positively that it was a failure. The inconsistency was explained, however, by the fact that the first letter was signed by representatives of the country press and the second by the city men. The difference between the statements was the difference in the practical application of prohibition to city and country. Further trial has demonstrated the impossibility of making one law fit both cases. The Chicago Tribune reports that the mayors of Keokuk, Burlington, Davenport, Council Bluffs, Dubuque, Sioux City, Clinton and Ottumwa have issued a call for a convention of representatives from all Iowa towns of over 4000 population to urge a modification of the present prohibitory law, which remains a dead letter in those cities and at the same time deprives them of a large tax that might be imposed on the liquor traffic. There is no constitutional objection to the passage of an act giving the larger municipalities, where prohibition is inert, the option of imposing on saloons a high restrictive tax while strict prohibition remains the general rule of the state. The stand taken by the municipal authorities of the cities is merely that they prefer half a loaf to no bread, and they protest that in striving for the impossible they should not be denied all practicable means of controlling the liquor traffic. Unable to enforce absolute prohibition, they ask for power to protect themselves against free vending of whisky by a high tax.

Portland has been supposed by some to have felt no interest in the opening of the Columbia river; but the proceedings of the waterway convention at The Dalles seems to have dispelled this idea. Portland's participation in the convention was hearty and active. It was stated in the convention by representatives of the Portland board of trade that it was thought better by the board to have the convention at some other point than Portland, so as to avoid possible local jealousy; but Portland, nevertheless, would heartily co-operate in anything that might be undertaken. It should be stated also that the memorial to congress, expressive of the objects of the meeting, was drawn up by a committee of which Mr. D. P. Thompson of Portland was chairman. Portland's interest in an open river, from British Columbia to the sea, is not less than that of any other place in the state, and is even greater than most. It is believed there will be no further misunderstanding about this.

Iowa has [illegible] residents who were born in Oregon. How they can content themselves to live in Iowa the "returns" fail to explain.

It is said that the Keady liquor law will shut up sixteen saloons in Clackamas county alone. So much for high license.

THE GRANT MEMOIRS.

First Volume of the Old Commander's Personal Recollections.

Telling the Story of His Own Career Up to Vicksburg's Capture—Estimates of Contemporaries in Two Wars.

Much of the matter contained in the first volume of Gen. Grant's memoirs has already been given to the public through the old commander's papers in the Century and by advance sheets. Some points, however, are entirely new, and as they are given in Gen. Grant's own words unusual interest attaches to them.

It is thought worthy of mention that the little town of Georgetown, O., where the general's boyhood was spent and whence he went to West Point, furnished the Union army with four general officers and one colonel West Point graduates, and nine generals and field officers of volunteers, many of whom were companions of Grant's boyhood. Of his stay at the academy it is told that military life had no attractions for him, and he did not expect to stay in the army even if he graduated. His idea was to get through the course, secure a detail for a few years as assistant professor of mathematics at the academy, and afterwards obtain a permanent position as professor in some respectable college. During the first year's encampment Gen. Scott reviewed the cadets, and Cadet Grant thought him the finest specimen of manhood his eyes had ever beheld, and the most to be envied. He relates having a presentiment for a moment that he should one day occupy Gen. Scott's place in the review. The next summer President Martin Van Buren visited the academy, but he did not impress the Ohio cadet.

THE MEXICAN WAR.

Describing his army life at Jefferson barracks, St. Louis, after graduation, incidental reference is made to Lieut. Ewell, who subsequently became a Confederate general, and proved himself an efficient officer in two wars—both unholy. Of the first of these unholy wars—the Mexican—the events leading up to it furnish an incident that calls forth an estimate on the practice of dueling. While his regiment was in New Orleans one morning the young officer left his quarters to learn the meaning of a rifle-shot. He observed two knots of men near by and learned afterwards that it was nothing—"only a couple of gentlemen deciding a difference of opinion with rifles at twenty paces." "I do not believe," is the general's comment, "I ever would have the courage to fight a duel. If any man should wrong me to the extent of my being willing to kill him I would not be willing to give him the choice of weapons with which it should be done, and of the time, place, and distance separating us when I executed him. If I should do another such a wrong as to justify him in killing me I would make any reasonable atonement within my power if convinced of the wrong done."

Most of what is said about the Mexican war has already been published in the newspapers. The battle of Cerro Gordo calls out a contrast of the man who had won his admiration at the academy—Gen. Scott—and Gen. Taylor. Of the former he relates that he was not averse to speaking of himself, often in the third person, and could bestow praise upon the person he was talking about without the least embarrassment. Both were pleasant to serve under—Taylor was pleasant to serve with. Both were true, patriotic and upright in all their dealings. Scott saw more through the eyes of his staff officers than through his own. His plans were deliberately prepared and fully expressed in his orders. Taylor saw for himself, and gave orders to meet the emergency without reference to how they would read in history.

It was during the advance on the City of Mexico that Grant was promoted to be first lieutenant. He had gone into the battle of Palo Alto in May, 1846, a second lieutenant, and it was sixteen months later before his promotion had come. After the war was over his marriage soon followed, and a little later came his transfer to San Francisco, where he got his promotion as captain. The result of his resignation from the army and life as a farmer in the log cabin near St. Louis is soon told. "In the fall of 1858 I sold out my stock, crops and farming utensils at auction and gave up farming."

HIS VOTE FOR BUCHANAN.

His first presidential vote and the reasons therefor are told as follows:

"As the time for the presidential election of 1856—the first at which I had the opportunity of voting—approached, party feeling began to run high. The republican party was regarded in the South and the border states not only as opposed to the extension of slavery, but as favoring the compulsory abolition of the institution without compensation to the owners. The most horrible visions seemed to present themselves to the minds of the people, who, one would suppose, ought to have known better. Many educated and otherwise sensible persons appeared to believe that emancipation meant social equality. Treason to the government was openly advocated and was not rebuked. It was evident to my mind that the election of a republican president in 1856 meant the secession of all the slave states and rebellion. Under these circumstances I preferred the success of a candidate whose election would prevent or postpone secession to seeing the country plunged into a war the end of which no man could foretell. With a democrat elected by the unanimous vote of the slave states, there could be no pretext for secession for four years. I very much hoped that the passions of the people would subside in that time, and the catastrophe be averted altogether; if it was not, I believed the country would be better prepared to receive the shock and resist it. I therefore voted for James Buchanan for president. Four years later the republican party was successful in electing its candidate to the presidency. The civilized world has learned the consequence. Four million of human beings held as chattels have been liberated; the ballot has been given to them; the free schools of the country have been opened to their children. The nation still lives, and the people are just as free to avoid social intimacy with the blacks as ever they were, or as they are with white people."

When the election of 1860 took place he had not been living in Galena long enough to be a citizen of Illinois, and therefore was not able to vote. The contest he considered to lie between Breckinridge and Lincoln, and as between them he wanted to see the latter succeed. When the speck on the horizon appeared following Lincoln's election he believed with Mr. Seward that the war would be over in ninety days.

MEETING JOHN A. LOGAN.

After he became colonel of the Twenty-first Illinois, the mistaken impression he had formed of John A. Logan is described as follows:

"The ten regiments which had volunteered in the state service for thirty days, it will be remembered, had done so with a pledge to go into the national service if called upon within that time. When they volunteered the government had only called for ninety days enlistments. Men were called now for three years or the war. They felt that this change of period released them from the obligation of volunteering. When I was appointed colonel, the Twenty-first regiment was still in the state service. About the time they were to be mustered into the United States service, such of them as would go, two members of congress from the state, McClernand and Logan, appeared at the capital, and I was introduced to them. I had never seen either of them before, but I had read a great deal about them, and particularly about Logan, in the newspapers. Logan had been elected to congress from the southern district of the state, where he had 18,000 majority over his republican competitor. His district had been settled by people originally from the southern states, and at the breaking out of secession they sympathized with the South. At the first outbreak of the war some of them joined the southern army; many others were preparing to go; others rode over the country at night denouncing the Union, and made it as necessary to guard railroad bridges over which national troops had to pass in southern Illinois as it was in Kentucky or any of the border slave states. Logan's popularity in this district was unbounded. He knew almost enough of the people by their Christian names to form an ordinary congressional district. As he went in politics his district was sure to go. The republican papers had been demanding that he should announce where he stood on the questions which at that time engrossed the whole public thought. Some were very bitter in their denunciations of his silence. Logan was not a man to be coerced into an utterance by threats. He did, however, come out in a speech before the adjournment of the special session of congress which was convened by the president soon after his inauguration, and announced his undying loyalty and devotion to the Union. But I had not happened to see that speech, so that when I first met Logan my impressions were those formed from reading denunciations of him. McClernand, on the other hand, had early taken strong grounds for the maintenance of the Union, and had been praised accordingly by the republican papers. The gentleman who presented these two members of congress asked me if I would have any objections to their addressing my regiment. I hesitated a little before answering. It was but a few days before the time set for mustering into the United States service such of the men as were willing to volunteer for three years of the war. I had some doubts as to the effect a speech from Logan might have, but as he was with McClernand, whose sentiments on the all-absorbing questions of the day were well known, I gave my consent. McClernand spoke first and Logan followed in a speech which he has hardly equaled since for force and eloquence. It breathed loyalty and devotion to the Union, which inspired my men to such a point that they would have volunteered to remain in the army as long as an enemy of the country continued to bear arms against it. They entered the United States service almost to a man.

"Gen. Logan went to his part of the state and gave his attention to raising troops. The very men who at first made it necessary to guard the roads in southern Illinois became the defenders of the Union. Logan entered the service as a colonel of a regiment and rapidly rose to the rank of major-general. His district, which had promised at first to give much trouble to the government, filled every call made upon it for troops without resorting to the draft. There was no call made when there were not more men than were asked for. That congressional district stands credited at the war department to-day with furnishing more men for the army than it was called on to supply."

PHIL SHERIDAN.

In describing the advance on Chattanooga, the following is given regarding Phil Sheridan:

"* * * When Gen. Halleck took the field in April 1862, Sheridan was assigned to duty on his staff. During the advance on Corinth a vacancy occurred in the colonelcy of the Second Michigan cavalry. Gov. Blair, of Michigan telegraphed Gen. Halleck asking him to suggest the name of a professional soldier for the vacancy, saying he would appoint a good man without reference to his state. Sheridan was named, and was so conspicuously efficient that when Corinth was reached he was assigned to command a cavalry brigade in the army of the Mississippi. He was in command at Booneville the 1st of July, with two small regiments when he was attacked by a force full three times as numerous as his own. By very skillful maneuvers and boldness of attack he completely routed the enemy. For this he was made a brigadier-general and became a conspicuous figure in the army about Corinth. On this occasion I was sorry to see him leave me. His departure was probably fortunate for he rendered distinguished services in his new field."

AT VICKSBURG.

Here is a little touch while the army was before Vicksburg:

"The news of the capture of Holly Springs and the destruction of our supplies caused much rejoicing among the people (rebels) remaining in Oxford. They came with broad smiles on their faces, indicating intense joy, to ask what I was going to do now without anything for my soldiers to eat. I told them I was not disturbed; that I had already sent troops and wagons to collect all the food and forage they could find for fifteen miles on each side of the road. Countenances changed, and so did the inquiry. The next was: "What are we to do?" My response was that we had endeavored to feed ourselves from our Northern resources while visiting them; but their friends in gray had been uncivil enough to destroy what we had brought along, and it could not be expected that men with arms in their hands would starve in the midst of plenty. I advised them to emigrate east or west fifteen miles, and assist in eating up what we left."

Upon the same subject the following opinion is expressed: "I always admired the South, as bad as I thought their cause, for the boldness with which they silenced all opposition and all croaking, by press or individuals, within their control. War at all times, whether a civil war between sections of a common country or between nations, ought to be averted, if possible with honor. But once entered into it is too much for human nature to tolerate an enemy within their ranks, to give aid and comfort to the armies of the opposing section or nation."

Again he says: "Because I would not divulge my ultimate plans to visitors they pronounced me idle, incompetent, and unfit to command men in an emergency, and clamored for my removal. They were not to be satisfied, many of them, with my simple removal, but named who my successor should be. McClernand, Fremont, Hunter and McClellan were all mentioned in this connection. I took no steps to answer these complaints, but continued to do my duty as I understood it to the best of my ability. Every one has his superstitions. One of mine is that in positions of great responsibility every one should do his duty to the best of his ability where assigned by competent authority, without application or the use of influence to change his position. . . . Persons obtaining important commands by application or political influence are apt to keep a written record of complaints and predictions of defeat which are shown in case of disaster. Somebody must be responsible for their failures."

The volume closes with a retrospect of the campaign which had ended in the capture of Vicksburg, and brings events to the time Gen. Grant was ordered to report at Cairo.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ELECTION

The annual election for chief engineer and two assistants will take place this evening from 6 to 9 P M, at Pioneer engine house, corner of Third and J streets. The candidates are. For chief engineer—Fred Rindorf, of Pioneer No 1 and James McGrew, Jr., of Grant No 2; for assistants—J. ... Stephens, of Grant, and J P. Resing, of Relief No 3. There being but two candidates for assistants, the only question to be decided by the election as to them is that of rank, the positions of first and second assistant respectively being determined by the number of votes each candidate receives. Grant's candidates were nominated at a meeting held Saturday evening Henry Breithaupt was nominated for assistant, but he positively declining, the honor was thrust upon Mr. Stephens although against his wish also.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS—A. O. U. W.

At the last regular meeting of Fidelity lodge No 4 A. O. U. W. the semi annual election of officers was held with the following result M W, J E Boynton foreman, Thomas Masters overseer, W C Everest recorder, J B Pape financier, Ed. Frandan, receiver, Dr G I Nottingham ... Joseph Kehoe I W, G W Church O W, ... Spence trustee, Wm Halfpenny. Installation will take place the first Thursday evening in January

THE FATAL ACCIDENT AT NEWCASTLE, W. T.

Coroner Dawson, of Seattle, held an inquest over the bodies of two men killed in the Newcastle mines Friday morning last. The jury returned the following verdict

We, the jury duly impaneled by the coroner of King county to inquire into the cause and circumstances attending the death of two men killed in the slope of the Newcastle mine after inspecting their bodies and after thorough investigation and examination of witnesses do find that the deceased were Morgan D Davis aged ... years a native of South Wales, and Wm J Lewis aged 29 years a native of South Wales and that they came to their death in the slope of the Newcastle mine, in King county Washington territory, at about 10 o'clock in the forenoon of the 4th day of December, 1885, by wounds received from an empty car which broke loose from the descending cage and crushed them as they were ascending on the other cage with a loaded car, there being a rule of the management of the mine prohibiting their men from riding upon a loaded cage and the jury do find that there has been gross carelessness both on the part of the management of the mine in enforcing the regulations above referred to, and on the part of the men in observing said regulation, and the jury do further conclude that the cages in use in said mine are not safe and should be changed and improved and that greater care should be used in selecting experienced and reliable signal men and in the enforcement of regulations to secure the safety of the men in going up and down the slope

TACOMA NOTES.

TACOMA, Dec 5

Burglars chicken thieves, footpads and assaulters of women are infesting the city and their depredations in some form or other are of frequent occurrence The city has no organized or efficient police force, and such a thing as catching a criminal of this sort is unknown.

The absorbing topic of interest here at the present time is the trial of Wm. M White for the murder of James McMillan which has been in progress in the district court since Thursday morning and is likely to occupy two or three days of next week. McMillan held a mortgage on a part of the premises owned and occupied by White, which was foreclosed sold to McMillan at sheriff's sale and the sale confirmed by decree of the court. White still claimed possession though his residence was on an adjoining tract. McMillan on July 17 last went to the premises taking with him a mower and rake and a man to assist him in cutting hay When White saw him there he came from his house a half mile away armed with a revolver and accompanied by his son Thomas, a young man 21 years of age McMillan also had a rifle with him After some conversation with White McMillan who was sitting in his wagon went to where his man sat upon the mower a short distance away White followed and soon after a conflict took place in which two shots were fired by White, and, as is claimed by defense one by McMillan and the latter was shot through the head and killed The evidence is conflicting as to who fired the first shot McMillan's man contradicting the statements of White and his boy the only parties present

LAID FOR A BURGLAR AND CAUGHT HIM—As policeman Beyer was standing at the corner of Third and Yamhill streets about 1 30 yesterday morning he heard a sound as of breaking glass at the corner of Second and Yamhill and saw a Chinaman cross Yamhill street going south He went down to Second street and looked for broken windows and at length found that a square of glass had been broken in the window of Walker & Thayer's hardware store. He posted himself in a hallway near ... kept a sharp watch on the broken window and when Policeman Ennig came along enlisted him in to assist in capturing the burglar should he come back to help himself to the pistols and other goods in the window. After watching about an hour the Chinaman was seen crossing the street toward the broken window but as there were several milkmen in the vicinity he did not stop He soon came back and passed and repassed the window several times At length the electric lights went out and darkness brooded over the street and then the bold burglar slipped up to the window and helped himself to a handful of pistols Beyer and Ennig rushed out and the fellow ran Several shots were fired after him, but only added to his speed and the two policemen had to put their best feet forward to catch him which they succeeded in doing at the corner of Third and Yamhill He showed fight but was soon knocked out and taken to the city jail, where he gave the name of Ah Sing. Quite a number of windows have been broken within the past few weeks and goods stolen from each At Kurron & Macbeth's ... were taken ... Will Curry's several ... stolen and at Wiberg & Hollabaugh's ... shoes were taken It is probable that this Ah Sing, has been the burglar in each of the cases and he seems to have known enough to do his window smashing about the time the watch was being changed He shut his business off a little too long yesterday morning and will probably go where the windows are protected by iron bars

TRAVELERS' GROWLS—Two old time traveling men, one a railroad officer and the other a San Francisco drummer met at the Gilman yesterday afternoon and were comparing notes of a trip in eastern Oregon The drummer had just returned from a trip to Colfax and was telling about a night's rest he had at Palouse junction "I got in in the evening, and found the hotel crowded I offered the landlady any price for a room by myself as I had about $500 in my pockets, but the best I could get was half of a three quarter bed, in a double room Four of us in a room not large enough for a good sized man no ventilation at all and the little window had to be closed against the cold And such a bed The pillow was stuffed with barbed wire and the mattress with sagebrush and my companion in bed had the nightmare, while the two in the other bed looked wicked enough to kill a man for two dollars and a half I've staged it from Winnemucca to to Umatilla six times and never passed a more miserable night" "But you fared better than I did" answered the railroad man "I started for Ellensburg last week The train reached Pasco Junction at 3 o'clock in the morning cold as Greenland and I had to pace the platform for four hours before I could get a drink of whisky a bite to eat or a place to sit down without freezing When I reached Yakima I decided that I had enough of it and I postponed my trip to Ellensburg until next summer After this all the traveling I do in winter will be on the main line"

THE LICENSE QUESTION—The common council meets this evening to consider in committee of the whole the license ordinance introduced last Wednesday night There seems to be a pretty strong sentiment against the passage of such an ordinance The rates named are in most cases far too high Of course if the council should come to the conclusion to pass this ordinance they will see that many kinds of business which have been omitted are placed on the list. Among those not set down are restaurants, stationers, farriers, florists, dealers in musical instruments, planing mills, manufacturers of brooms willowware, clothing, boots and shoes soda water, cigars and many other kinds of business The only way in which such a tax can be made at all just and equitable is on a basis of the receipts of the business And this is a very complicated matter to deal with Much the better way is to tax property If money enough cannot be raised that way let the council cut down salaries and reduce expenses all round There are many people in business who find it hard enough to get along without having an additional tax laid on them.

OREGON AT NEW ORLEANS—Mr E W Allen writes to THE OREGONIAN from New Orleans under date of November 28 "I have the Oregon exhibit all installed and it is one that will certainly bring credit upon the state While it is not large it is acknowledged to be one of the finest in the building. What I need is a good supply of fresh fruits and vegetables. I left so early in the season that I was not able to get what the exhibit should show in the ... I shall certainly do all that I can to do good for Oregon in my humble way, and desire to thank THE OREGONIAN for the support it has given me The weather thus far has been perfect and every body is encouraged to believe that New Orleans will be herself again this winter and crowded the Queen City of the sunny south. The exposition also bids fair to excel in many respects that of last winter It certainly cannot fail of being a favorite and pleasant resort for thousands seeking relief from the rigors of northern winters.

SCHOOLHOUSE WANTED ON THE HILL.—The residents on that part of Marquam's hill lately included in the city limits, number among them thirty children of the proper age to attend the public schools, and there are some twenty five more little ones who will be old enough next year. These children now have to attend the Failing school and the trip to school and back, up and down that hill in this winter weather is a very rough one on the little folks. The residents on the hill think that, as their taxes have been about doubled by being taken into the city they should be provided with a school. There would be no need to erect a building at present, as a suitable one could be rented at a moderate cost, and the school would not be a very expensive affair and would be a great benefit to the dwellers on the hill

LOST $3000 ON A SPENDTHRIFT.—When Frank Harrington kept a disreputable dive at the corner of Second and Morrison streets among the frequenters of the place was George LaRocque It was well known that LaRocque had some property coming to him from the estate of his father and consequently Harrington trusted him and loaned him money all his account according to Harrington's figuring amounted to about $3000 LaRocque skipped out about the time his father's estate was divided and is said to be on British soil somewhere near Nanaimo Harrington brought suit in the state circuit court here to recover his money and the case was decided against him. He then moved for a new trial and that has been denied and the costs taxed to Harrington. He can console himself with the thought that he is not the only one who got left in the same manner

ARRESTED ON TWO CHARGES—John Timmons who follows the lucrative profession of a singer at the Tivoli called at the residence of John Hanson on Second street between Madison and Jefferson at an early hour yesterday morning and became involved in a quarrel with one of Hanson's lodgers. He was led off captive by a passing policeman and at the city jail deposited $10 as bail He then started back to Hanson's with the avowed intention of thumping him, but the programme was interrupted by Timmons being again arrested and taken to the city jail where he was obliged to put up $25 bail for the second offense. He will have a chance to explain his conduct to Judge Dement to-day and if he gets his $35 back he will be in luck

CHINAMEN STARVING IN THE WOODS.—The New Westminster Guardian tells of 300 or 400 Chinamen who are living on the bank of Pitt river in British Columbia It says they are the most miserable samples of humanity on the face of the earth If they were in coffins they would pass in any place for dead men. In their eyes there is a light that is always visible in the eyes of persons who believe that death by starvation is inevitable. The resources of civilization were employed to build our railroad and they supplied innumerable hands but the work is finished, the resources are locked up and the unfortunate wretches taken from Asia to work on the road are left to die in the woods

NEW TRIAL—The decision in the case of D H Budd vs the Multnomah street railway company has been reversed by the supreme court and a new trial ordered. The suit was brought in the state circuit court some time ago by Mr Budd who was one of the originators of the Multnomah street railway, against the present owners of that road to recover $900 or thereabouts, due him on account of his connection with the concern.

FUNERAL OF CAPT INGERSOLL.—The funeral services of the late Capt Nathaniel Ingersoll will be held to-day at 2 o'clock at the Baptist church on Fourth street Services at the grave will be private The interment will take place at Lone Fir cemetery

TEMPERANCE AT VANCOUVER.

Mass Meeting on Friday Evening Last.

At a temperance meeting held on Friday night Hon N H Bloomfield was chosen chairman He stated the object of the meeting to be expression of sentiment on temperance questions

After music by the Blue Ribbon band Prof Johnson, principal of Vancouver public schools then addressed the audience in an able argument in behalf of the question at issue in the course of which he touched the key note when he said

"We surely have the right to buy and sell manufactured products, but regarding the local option law it is not the buying and selling we must look beyond." This to the effect ...

A letter from Rev J ... Thompson was read. He regretted his inability to attend had been a total abstainer all his life and always ready to speak on temperance issue. "Hold the F..."

Mrs J ... Winkler then read an essay on whisky "More sad more misery more broken hearts and more ... are comprehended in this one word than in any other word in the English language."

Local option is what we are working for. "We who are for ... are either for or against temperance There can be no half way ground He that is not for the cause is against it The more work for the cause ... the more will be done on the other."

DR A DOBBINS

An earnest enthusiast and able temperance lecturer, who has done much hard and faithful temperance work in the east was then called forward amid applause His argument was logical and convincing and from first to last was roundly applauded Among the many good things he said were ... "Of all points in history since the liquor traffic began I am most impressed with putting the temperance plank in the public schools And this is what we most desire to do in placing the local option law before the people and ... we ... to get it made a law this coming legislature"

The chairman heartily endorsed Dr Dobbins's able remarks

Letters of regret were then in order One from

HON E L DENNISON.

Our representative who has just gone to Olympia to be on hand at the organization of the house of representatives on opening of the legislature on Monday

THE LETTER

VANCOUVER W T Dec 4 1885

To the Citizens's Mass Meeting in Vancouver, Dec 4 1885 I have been requested to be present at the meeting on Friday evening next the object of which is as I am informed to consider the subject of legislation in regard to selling intoxicating liquors I shall be unable to attend the meeting on that evening as I shall start for Olympia Friday morning I shall however be glad to know the views of my constituents on this subject and to favor such legislation as may be in accordance with their interests and wishes Yours respectfully

E F DENNISON,

MR LINDSLEY'S LETTER

PORTLAND Dec 4 1885

Friend Pitchcock—Until a few minutes ago I was making arrangements to be with you this evening but now find it impossible Had your invitation reached me a day or two sooner I could have made sure of reaching Vancouver this afternoon But as it is I find business here that will occupy me every moment until I leave for Olympia Before receiving your note I had fully intended to visit Vancouver this week and now exceedingly regret my inability to do so But I am a temperance man to the backbone and fully in accord with all reasonable advance in that direction You may depend upon me to support any legitimate legislative action calculated to strengthen the hands of those laboring in the cause but I am not a fanatic and do not believe in attempting impossibilities

Respectfully yours, H H LINDSLEY

Then followed an able and instructive essay by Miss Clara Butler of the Vancouver Lodge, I O G T on temperance which was loudly applauded by the large and highly appreciative audience present

Rev Mr Hamilton being called for by the audience made some very encouraging remarks and offers his hearty co-operation This gentleman is the pastor of the Presbyterian church at Union Ridge

The Rev Robert Phillips was then called for by the audience and made brief but pointed interesting remarks, and gave pith and point by anecdote ... for the Shore was stuck with enthusiasm by all present.

At this juncture petitions were circulated for signatures praying the legislature to enact the local option law—not high license or any Kendy law—but local option and no compromise with the devil

The following resolution was then adopted by the audience

WHEREAS, As experience has proved that human nature is more prone to evil than to good, and the abuse of intoxicants is far more gravely than their possible scientific or medical use it is hereby

Resolved 1st That prohibition is the only safe guard of society and we therefore demand as our right that the legislature of Washington territory enact a law prohibiting the sale of liquor in the counties in which the citizens by vote declare their desire to exclude its use

The meeting was one of the most harmonious and successful of the kind ever held in Vancouver and reflects great credit on all who took part in working it up ...

If several petitions are now being circulated throughout the ... for local option and the representatives will ... stand the meaning of the ... will in advance ... to ... We are ... on this side of the Columbia and ... the death on this ...

SPEAK GOOD ENGLISH.

PORTLAND, Dec. 5

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN,

One of the features that strikes well educated Englishmen in regard to uneducated Americans, is the ease with which they express themselves in their mother tongue Barring violation of the rules of grammar and mispronouncing of big words Americans with little pretense to education seem to possess in a far higher degree than their transatlantic brethren that immediate flow of language which with logical and felicitous ideas make orators

Recognizing these facts and knowing that Portland rejoices in the possession of a library well furnished with books and educational advantages of the best kind it has been a source of wonder to the writer why the English language should be dragged in the mire to the extent it is by the rising generation of this town

I will not enumerate any of the rules of grammar and orthoepy they daily sin against as it would take too much space I will not dwell at length on the copious interlarding of slang phrases in their every day conversation because to remedy that evil slang will probably be accepted as an important factor in the English language and also for the especial benefit of the young of both sexes Neither will I mount what a jarring revelation it is to hear the English language murdered by young men who from the stamp they bear and the positions they fill would naturally be supposed gentlemen of education and refinement.

Young men, as you learn always move in good society both in America and England by showing good manners and speaking your mother tongue correctly so you can always remain outside the pale of good society by conveying your food to your mouth with your knife or by showing a total disregard for or ignorance of the laws that govern the English language

You live in a country that has always aimed to be first in everything and I heartily wish that critics ... its try also to make ... first as an English speaking nation G F B.

SATURDAY, Dec. 5.

Overland receipts include 1 bbl cocoanut, 50 cs lye, 100 cs canned goods, 51 bls sisal, 60 bxs nails, 1 cs cigarettes, 126 pkgs tobacco, car plows, 2 cars wagons.

Str Walla Walla, for San Francisco, carried 43 850 ctls wheat, 31 ctls barley.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past twenty-four hours 7826 ctls wheat, 296 bbls flour, 618 ctls oats, 417 ctls barley, 625 sks millstuff, 71 sks potatoes, 151 lbs wool, 561 lbs hides, 18 cs eggs, 7725 lbs hops, 460 bxs fruit, 10 pkgs butter. Also 26 817 ctls wheat, 300 bbls flour, 30 ctls barley, 055 lbs wool, 4220 lbs hides, 530 sks flaxseed from the eastern section.

FREIGHTS—The Northernhay, Viola and Alumina arrived seeking. Rumor says the City of Canton has been taken up for grain loading. The market is without new feature but recent spot transactions would indicate a better feeling. The Katahdin is believed to be under charter.

WHEAT—Foreign markets steady. Chicago and New York irregular and weaker with a marked decline in options. Some little business is passing at San Francisco although few sellers are in the market. Advices during the last days of the week have indicated a better feeling but it is of such a character as to inspire very little confidence. Wheat markets had been looked for this month but the reverse has so far obtained. Locally the feeling depends on advices and the several charters recently reported indicate a higher degree of confidence without showing that any advance is probable. Sellers have been feeling the market without meeting much encouragement, shippers appearing indifferent because of small means. The market remains difficult to quote as buyers and sellers are apart and talk all sorts of figures. While the quotations of $1 15@1 17½ and $1 25@1 27½ are retained, paying prices for the little bought are nearer the extremes. Valley offered at $1 25 was not sold, while to fill certain needs an advance on $1 17½ was paid a few days ago.

Colfax W T correspondence: In making estimates of wheat yet to be shipped from the eastern section you can put Colfax at from 150 000 to 200 000 bushels. One warehouse contains over 80 000 bushels and has nearly 20 000 still outside. Other warehouses are full and have wheat piled outside. After outside wheat is shipped but little will be forwarded without decided improvement in price, until spring. From best information obtainable it is thought nearly two-thirds of the wheat is out of farmers' hands and the bulk of that still held by them is near awaiting the Farmington branch road.

FLOUR—Receipts continue free and the sailing of the Alaskan steamer dulls the request somewhat. Values show no change and are fairly steady.

MILLSTUFF—Receipts liberal and stocks ample of most grades. Values remain as last reported, first prices being weak.

OATS—Three cars in to day, one being for San Francisco. Offerings are fair but not at prices that will admit of shipment. Locally the market is firm, full prices being possible for retail trading. For shipment buyers name 32@36¼c with 34@35c paid for choice for the local trade.

POTATOES—Some request for Burbanks for shipment with 30c paid. Other qualities dull at 20c.

ONIONS—Dealers pay 1@1½c for choice. The market is very quiet with only local needs to be met.

APPLES—Slack demand at 45@50c. Receipts ample.

PROVISIONS—Demand mostly supplied by city packers, trade in eastern being light and country cured slow of sale. Values are as last quoted.

DRIED FRUIT—Demand fair, but the market is very quiet at old prices.

EGGS—Selling at 35c. Receipts light at present and to-day's market is firm.

POULTRY—All kinds continue weak but the low prices have affected arrivals, and the market presents a better front. Chickens, $2@2 50; geese, $6@8; turkeys, 16c.

THE NEWS OF SATURDAY

The following is an epitome of the news of Saturday, printed in full in the SUNDAY OREGONIAN

DOMESTIC

The government cruiser Chicago was launched at Chester, Pa.

The Oregon Railway & Navigation company has declared a regular dividend of 1½ per cent and an extra dividend of ½ per cent, making the present dividend 2 per cent., payable January 2d.

Representative Randall is strongly opposed to the scheme to change the rules of the house. He thinks the public interests demand that the appropriation bills be considered by the appropriations committee.

A call has been issued by the secretary of the International Cattle and Horse Growers' association for delegates to the first annual meeting at Denver, January 26th next. The representation allowed is one delegate for 50 000 cattle and horses. All rangemen are invited whether delegates or not.

For speaker of the house the democratic caucus nominated Representative Bavaru and the republicans named Representative Reed of Maine. The latter caucus passed the following resolution: "That it is the sense of this caucus that immediate steps be taken by the forty-ninth congress to provide for the presidential succession."

The republican caucus of senators nominated Senator Sherman for president pro tem. Senator Sherman made a brief speech accepting the nomination. It was then determined that bills relating to the presidential election and also to presidential succession which had passed the senate during the last congress should be introduced as soon as practicable and after proper reference and consideration should be promptly passed. The democratic caucus nominated Senator Harris of Tennessee.

Land Commissioner Sparks has weakened slightly and will issue patents where examinations have been made by government detectives and no fraud is found. There are now about twenty agents and detectives examining claims and they manage to get through about four a week, at which rate it will take them something like 150 years to complete what Sparks has given them. He will certify to homestead entries where residence, improvement and cultivation have been made according to law. In other words, he will issue patents to those who have lived five years upon their homesteads and have made legal improvements and the amount of cultivation required.

A long letter from Samuel J. Tilden to Representative Carlisle has been given to the press. It is a suggestion to congress and advises the expenditure of a portion of the surplus now in the treasury for the construction of coast and harbor defenses. The letter says: "If we do not make the expenditure necessary to provide for our sea coast defenses when we have a surplus and have no need to levy new taxes we certainly will not make these expenditures when we have no longer a surplus in the treasury. To leave our vast interests defenseless in order to reduce the cost of whisky to its consumers would be a solecism. Also the best guarantee against aggression, the best assurances that our diplomacy will be successful and pacific and our rights and honor respected by other nations is in their knowledge that we are in a situation to vindicate our reputation and interests. While we may afford to be deficient in means of offense we cannot afford to be defenseless. The notoriety of the fact that we have neglected the ordinary precautions of defense invites a want of consideration in our diplomacy and injustice, arrogance and insult at the hands of foreign nations."

PACIFIC COAST

The steamer San Pedro is again afloat.

Three hundred Chinese are reported in a starving condition on Fraser river. They are discharged railway hands.

Henry Sanders, from Oakland, California, was burned to death Friday morning in a shanty west of North Yakima W T. He was intoxicated and set fire to the shanty.

At the last day's races of the San Francisco Blood Horse association the following horses were the winners: John Ban, Ed Corrigan, Alta, Duke of Monday and John A.

The San Francisco labor convention ended in dissension. The socialists passed incendiary resolutions against the Chinese, whereupon the Knights of Labor withdrew in a body.

A Bozeman, Montana, special says: Joseph Jando placed his 11 year-old daughter in a house of prostitution. Vigilantes took Jando and hanged him to a lamp post. His cries aroused the police who rescued him and he is now in the care of the sheriff.

Salt Lake City has been full of rumors of intended rebellion by the Mormons. The government evidently anticipates trouble, as Battery B from Omaha has been suddenly dispatched to Utah. It is thought by some that the president's message will contain expressions on Mormonism which may create a disturbance.

The United States grand jury at San Francisco, while making no indictments says in its reports regarding frauds in connection with the restriction act: "We are convinced that gross irregularities and frauds have been perpetrated and that these could not have been done except with the connivance or assistance of certain officials connected with the customs department." The whole matter is then left to the future grand jury.

FOREIGN

A Nissa dispatch says: The terms of peace offered by the Bulgarian government have been rejected. It is expected that war will be renewed Monday.

Terrific storms swept over the Isthmus of Panama last week. Of twenty nine vessels anchored at Colon, only fifteen can now be seen. Many of them were sunk with their crews. The loss of life cannot at present be estimated.

A careful estimate of the probable results in the unpolled districts of Great Britain by the news association shows that the house of commons will almost certainly be composed of 331 liberals, 255 conservatives and 84 Parnellites.

OLYMPIA NOTES

OLYMPIA, Dec 4.

During the coming week several entertainments will be given for various purposes, the first being the Grismer-Davies company on Tuesday evening, followed by sociables, fairs etc., during the rest of the week.

In reference to an associated press dispatch which appeared in THE OREGONIAN a few days since in reference to the resignation of Secretary Owings, it might be stated that Col Owings never resigned, but his term of office having expired in April 1885, he was immediately reappointed and no further changes have taken place in his office since.

The members of the legislature are here and button holing has commenced on an extensive scale, the members of the third house seeming to have considerable of a majority. It looks very much as if the eastern members will get the chief clerkship of the council and some other offices, but at present writing everything seems very dark. The present legislature seem to be made up of good honest looking, hard working citizens, who no doubt will make a creditable showing before the session closes.

The accident which was reported as having occurred here a few days ago by which a worthy young laboring man lost his right hand, is indeed a very sad case and one well deserving of help. The family of the unfortunate man (Mr Sumpter) are only just recovering from the scarlet fever, his wife was but lately confined and quite a large family has to be supported. A subscription list is being made up so as to help the unfortunate ones in their dire calamity, and as soon as Columbia hall can be obtained the O. S. C. orchestra intend giving an entertainment for the benefit of the stricken family, which no doubt will be largely attended.

ORCHESTRAL CONCERT

One of the most interesting events that has taken place here for many years in the musical line and which seems to have given general satisfaction, was the concert given last night in this city by the O. S. C. orchestra composed of the following members: First violin, Leslie Sinnard, leader; second violins, Mitchell Harris and Sam Bowman; clarionet, L. P. Ouellette; flute, A. C. Williams; first cornet, O. R. Simpson; second cornet, E. Van Epps; trombone, C. M. Moore; bass viol, Jas Harris; piano, W. H. Roberts, director. As soon as the curtain rose a handsomely illuminated arch was discovered back of the performers, illuminated with gas jets forming the letters "O. S. C. O." executed by Messrs. Horton and Matthews. The programme was well rendered from the beginning to the end and many of the selections were thoroughly encored, especially the vocal solo, "Scenes that are Brightest," by Miss Kate Ward of Tumwater, and the violin and viola solos by Mr. Sinnard. The orchestra gave six selections admirably, and the remainder of the programme was made up of specialties. Never have the people of Olympia evinced more genuine satisfaction than was apparent last night, and their great anxiety now seems to be to have the concert repeated at an early day. As the members have only been practicing together for three months their proficiency in that short time is very encouraging and augurs well for their future success as an orchestra. The proceeds of this concert amount to about $100, which will be devoted to paying for the instruments and music necessary for such entertainments.

GOLDENDALE NOTES

GOLDENDALE, W T, Dec 4.

Merchants are receiving holiday goods, and a good trade is promised.

A lodge of the A O U W order has been established here with twenty charter members. It meets every Monday night.

There are several cases of scarlet fever in this city. The authorities have taken every precaution to check the disease, schools, churches and places of amusement being closed for the present.

The Goldendale Tribune made its first appearance to-day. It is published and edited by M H Alcott, formerly of The Dalles. It is to be published every Thursday. If the first issue is to be a fair sample it certainly reflects great credit upon the publisher.

W H Chappell and wife, proprietors of the Palace, have just returned from an extensive visit to their old homes in Kansas and Missouri. The Palace will be opened Monday, December 7. The traveling public will hail this news with delight as they can always find excellent accommodations at the Palace.

TEMPERANCE MATTERS AT VANCOUVER.

VANCOUVER, Dec. 2.

As the day for meeting of the legislature approaches, people begin to discuss the laws and suggest amendments thereto, and among them the local option law is receiving attention. As to the reference in the Sunday OREGONIAN wherein Judge Dennison is made to say he will demand a local option law for Clarke county, your correspondent was misinformed, and this is what the judge does say: "I have never said to anyone that I should demand any local option law for Clarke county, or any other law in particular, except a repeal of some obnoxious laws already existing. Never said any such a thing to any one whatever."

The judge will leave to-morrow (Friday) for Olympia, and has left a letter to be read to-morrow night at the temperance rally. The substance of the letter is as follows: "I shall be unable to attend your meeting, but shall be glad to know the views of my constituents on the subject of local option and high license, and shall be disposed to favor such legislation as is in accordance with their interests and wishes."

It is expected there will be a large attendance. Good speakers and good music will be furnished.

PROHIBITION IN ATLANTA

What is Thought of Judge McCoy's Action—Men with Large Financial Interests at Stake

ATLANTA, Ga, Dec 1—[Special]—When the news spread upon the streets this forenoon that Judge McCoy of the federal district court had granted a temporary injunction against the declaration of the result of the prohibition election here last Wednesday, it set the "dry" leaders by the ears. The points presented to Judge McCoy must have been strong enough to induce him to grant the temporary injunction, suggested that he might just as easily make the injunction perpetual, in that event all the work of the election would go for naught. The bill was filed by Samuel Wiel as trustee for P. L. Nussbaum of Indianapolis who has large interests in a brewery here which would be bankrupted and confiscated by the enforcement of prohibition. The bill alleges many points of unconstitutionality against the local option act, the most interesting of which relates to the clause forbidding the sale of wine. The case rests on a decision of Chief Justice Taney which declares that the right to import wine carries with it the right to sell it, and no state could nullify the federal laws as to importation. The local option law forbids the sale of California and other wines and prevents the sale of Georgia made wine. This is held to be a nullification on the part of one state against another. The case will be heard next Tuesday. The day following the recent election a goodly number of men who are enthused upon temperance matters telegraphed inquiring about property purchases and business investment. As the excitement cools away it is being discovered that these men are not as conservative about risking their money as anybody else. On the other hand there are eight large wholesale liquor houses here which have been virtually confiscated and their army of employes will soon be on the curbs, one looking for work with other avenues already overcrowded. There are over fifty large saloons, etc., with another large crowd dependent upon them. Frank W. P. says he will have $25,000 in any event. Cohen & Co. are going to Cincinnati. Others will go to Montgomery. The nearest approach to business on behalf of a temperance man was on the part of Col John H. Inman of New York. He telegraphed yesterday that he would take $100 000 in stock of the prospected Georgia Midland road would place half a million more and concluded: "Being the owner of considerable real estate in Atlanta and interested in her progress, my belief is the decision is a part of her forward movement which will impel your city more rapidly toward her manifest destiny and the completion of this road will but accelerate the movement."

WANTS A PROTECTIVE ORGANIZATION

HILLSBORO, Dec. 1.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

It is believed that in Hillsboro there are persons who are in the employ of an organization to supply the places of the worn out army of prostitutes of Portland by stealing innocent girls from the country. If so then an organization of the fathers should be effected at once for the protection of the girls of this community. To attempt to console the parents after perhaps a fruitless search for their child by saying "I would prosecute the writer," or "The legislature should amend the law so as to prevent such things," is an insult rather than otherwise. Only a short time ago a confessed criminal in our town was whitewashed by the law, or rather defied the law and was not prosecuted. It only takes $5 and a dram of whisky to procure an oath that our law says is sufficient to shift the crime over from one to the other and all is satisfactory, so the innocent bears the burden for life while the guilty stands on the corners gazing into the countenances of girls who pass in order to select another selection upon whom to gratify a beastly desire. Shall we longer delay or shall we protect ourselves where the law fails by an organization from whose decisions there is no appeal?

Testimony of the Treasury Books

Pittsburg Dispatch.

It is pleasant to find the assurance in the report of the register of the treasury for this year that "the system of keeping the public accounts is as perfect as human wisdom has been able to devise" and that "there is not an error of a single cent to be found in all the records from March 1789 to June 30, 1885 covering an aggregate sum of more than $[illegible],000,000." This is highly satisfactory to the people at large as an assurance of the security with which the public business is transacted. It is also the pleasant to the officials of the treasury to have it understood that its books are all right, but the fact that this warranty of honesty comes from a democratic official and that who with other democratic politicians a little more than a year ago was strenuously demanding a chance to examine the treasury books and intimating that when they got that chance they would make revelations of a startling character puts that campaign cry in a rather strong light. Everyone will be glad to know on this authority that the treasury books are all square, but the statement rather tends to show that the democratic clamor of 1884 did more in the way of making noise than of hitting the mark.

The Disgraced Seventeen

Ochoco Review, (Dem.)

Last Saturday we received the news of the election of John Hipple Mitchell to the United States senate, and intelligence of the disgraceful action of seventeen so-called democrats who bartered away their votes and lent a helping hand to cause his election. His election was brought about by a bargain between himself and a few democratic mugwumps that he is to be an administration man. Those seventeen renegades who gave him their support—let them return to their homes and thereby sink into total oblivion, seek to repair the wrong they have done the party to which they claim allegiance. Let them bow down in their disgrace, the despised of all future generations. Let them only be remembered as the seventeen traitors who betrayed their party in the legislature of Oregon in 1885, and let their memory be cherished with a feeling like unto that which the American people hold for Benedict Arnold.

Fremont not Penniless.

New York Special, Nov 30.

It has been telegraphed all over the country that Gen John C. Fremont is passing the few remaining days of his life in dire distress. He is represented to be penniless, and the story goes that his friends of the old days had all deserted him. This is not true. Gen Fremont is growing old very rapidly but he is living comfortably. He is often seen on Broadway and in Wall street where he has many friends. His eye is bright and his form is erect. He lived for some years on Staten Island but he has a quiet enjoyable home in the upper part of the city. He rarely goes into society and is never seen at banquets, the opera or the theater. He spends his time in his library and chatting with one or two of his friends who drop in to see him occasionally. He was for years interested in Western mining schemes and he has profitable landed interests in California. He takes no interest in politics now and seldom refers to them.

The Servians a Bad Lot.

From London Truth.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the Servians will not only be thoroughly beaten but forced to pay the costs of the war into which they have plunged. A greater piece of impudence than that of Servia making war upon the Bulgarians because they take the liberty to live under one government instead of two, never perhaps, has been recorded in history. The Servians of Belgrade are as disreputable a gang of thieves as any that exists upon the face of the globe. The Servian peasants are hard working, quiet, decent people. Belgrade is peopled by scamps who make use of these peasants for their own ends and have but one object—to steal. They now want to steal their neighbors' land, usually they are engaged in stealing all the property of any confiding foreigner whom they can inveigle into their net.

Mr Conkling Outwitted

From the New York Sun.

George R. Blanchard, president of the plaintiff company and vice-president of the Erie railway, was under Mr. Conkling's cross-examination "for five hours." Mr Conkling was trying to get him to tell how long an interview had lasted.

"Can't you tell whether it was five minutes or five hours?" he asked finally.

"Yes," said the witness readily.

"Ah!" said Mr Conkling, "you can do that, eh? Well which was it?" And he stuck his right hand into his trousers pocket and looked hopefully at Mr. Blanchard.

"Neither," said the gentleman.

An Emphatic Protest

Ochoco Review (Dem.)

An egotistical idiot hailing from the brush thicket near Jefferson who supports the euphonious cognomen of Charles Smith immortalized himself while in the senatorial contest he changed his vote from Slater to Mitchell by saying that Mitchell assured me that he would do all he can for the advancement of the present administration as we require it. The democrats of Marion would better have a guard appointed for the poor creature or put a padlock on his mouth the next time they allow him in the secret caucus that proposes to barter away the party's honor. He's dangerous.

Ingersoll Not in Favor

From a Washington Letter.

Col Robert G. Ingersoll who has removed to New York, the better to accommodate himself to the exigencies of his law practice, is by some said to have been "frozen out" of Washington. It is certain that his advocacy of the star route defendants, and his subsequent connection with Dorsey in land speculations have given a chill to some of his old time admirers.

Captain Smith's Mistake

Macon Telegraph.

Captain Smith of the United States army, has been beaten at poker by a couple of Texas sharps, and for the offense has been court martialed and sentenced to confinement and loss of pay. Perhaps the captain has not had the benefit of a tour of duty in Washington City and he certainly cannot be a graduate of West Point.

Case of Jag ger-naut.

St Paul Globe.

Georgia anti prohibitionists are not satisfied with the decision of the people at Atlanta last Wednesday, and propose taking the matter to the courts. In the meantime they are in active correspondence with their brethren in Maine and Iowa as to the latest patterns in back door jug glery.

Recent experiments show that if bags containing oil are thrown from a ship in a storm, the force of the waves is assuaged. In the same way, St. Jacobs Oil checks the wave of rheumatism and brings peace where all was turmoil.
